There are hundreds of the papers out there about the subject of the HDTV and wireless AC networks. It is not difficult to find some good ideas, but the one thing that I've found is that it's pretty hard to evaluate whether a specific suggestions is the right one for you. Over time I have been able to identify the factors that I think are important, and I'd like to share them with you to help you make the best choices for yourself. There are so many wires going around this place, so many people moving about that it would be a miracle if one of them ever accidentally cut one of these power lines. One of the greatest lessons learned while working at the Littleton substation was that having a large, well-lit space was a good idea. It's also easy to ventilate.
