Today, we're going to show you how to easily create a blurred image using Photoshop Elements. The concepts that we will show you in this tutorial are quite useful for any photographer. However, the basics of image manipulation taught in this tutorial are especially applicable to graphic designers. There are two ways you can get our tutorial. If you are already signed into Photoshop.com and you navigate to our tutorials page, you will see a link to this tutorial. If you don't have an account at Photoshop.com, we've also put up a link where you can sign up for a free one-month trial of Photoshop Elements. Step 1. Start Photoshop Elements and load an image Launch Photoshop Elements and click the first photo you want to work on. By default, the active photo will be selected. Open an image from your computer into Photoshop Elements. Do not close the original image file in your computer. Note: Sometimes Photoshop Elements detects a JPEG image that has been edited in Photoshop. These JPEG images may not open into Photoshop Elements. In this case, you should open them into Photoshop and save them as a JPEG to avoid losing the edits you made to the original image. The easiest way to save an image as a JPEG is to use the File > Save As... command. Step 2. Blur a background using the Gaussian Blur tool Activate the Gaussian Blur tool. Click and drag the tool from one side of the canvas to the other. Keep in mind that the tool is not a brush. It creates a blur effect only inside the active layer. Step 3. Add a blurred layer over the top Click the Add Layer button in the Layers panel to add a new layer. The appearance of the new layer is 'Adjustment Layer'. If you don't see the Adjustment Layer in the Layers panel, it may be turned off. To make sure the Adjustment Layer is turned on, click the small button in the bottom-left of the Layers panel. Step 4. Adjust the blur radius Select the Adjustment Layer. On the top bar in the Layers panel, click the 'W 388ed7b0c7

A secure mobile user authentication protocol on the basis of the public key has been proposed. In addition, an example of an application program that embeds the mobile user authentication protocol in an application as a custom application has also been proposed. According to this technology, the mobile user authentication is usually carried out after the encryption of a communication process carried out between a server and a client is completed. Therefore, encryption and decryption used in the mobile user authentication protocol are expensive. Furthermore, the mobile user authentication protocol requires a lot of process for the client to generate a random number necessary for the authentication and to provide a public key certificate issued by a third party to the server. [Cytologic features of extrathoracic muscle-invasive tumors of the bladder and/or urethra]. The objective of this retrospective study was to analyze the sensitivity of cytology in the diagnosis of extrathoracic muscle-invasive tumors of the bladder and urethra. 43 patients were included in the study over a period of 8 years. The histological and cytological examinations of the ureter, the bladder, the urethra and the abdominal and pelvic wall were performed before the use of endoscopy, and the abdominal-pelvic ultrasonography and/or computed tomography. 22 patients had a clinically suspected malignancy. The other 21 patients had a lower urinary tract symptomatology. Microscopic examination revealed urinary tumors in 15 patients. The samples were obtained by bladder washing (n = 14) or by transurethral resection (n = 2). The cytological diagnoses were: urothelial carcinoma (n = 10), squamous cell carcinoma (n = 4), adenocarcinoma (n = 1) and undifferentiated carcinoma (n = 1). Of the 11 clinically negative patients, only 3 had a suspicious radiological finding (2 bladder tumors and 1 local infiltration of the bladder and the urethra). The sensitivity of cytology in the diagnosis of extrathoracic muscle-invasive tumors of the bladder and urethra is poor, and does not permit a sufficient exclusion of the malignant lesion. In the absence of a clinical relevant result, endoscopy is necessary, especially in case of very low-risk tumors. Welcome to Blackburn Ladies Football Club Blackburn Ladies Football Club was formed in 2012 and has been involved in a series of high profile friendly matches. Since then, the club has grown steadily and in 2016 changed its name to Blackburn Ladies Football Club. The club is for female players aged 14 to 50 years and caters to all levels of ability. Its home ground is at Ladies Community Centre ground in Blackburn Lancashire. The season runs from late April to late September. Football in England has changed dramatically since the 1980's. The Women's game has been growing and has produced some of the best known names in the game. Through the FA Women's National League (WNL) and numerous international friendlies and competitions they have, for a short while at least, conquered the world. Blackburn Ladies Football Club (BLFC) were formed on 9th September 2012 with the aim of participating in friendly matches during 2012. In 2013 the Ladies changed their name to 'Blackburn Ladies Football Club'. In May 2013 the club hosted England who were competing in the Baltic Cup tournament. In front of a sell out crowd the Ladies team won the game 2-1. They have had many other friendly wins since then, but we've decided not to be selective about which games we talk about. Since then, BLFC has been playing in the FA Cup every year, winning their first game away to Cheshire Women's County FA (14-0) on 17th September 2014. Another five games later, on 28th April 2015, the Lady's played their first ever FA Women's Cup game away to South Shields Ladies. They went on to win the match 8-3. There are currently 1,500 registered clubs in the FA Women's Premier League (FAWPL). Football in England is currently growing and Blackburn Ladies Football Club want to be a part of this. Our Mission To develop players and provide social activities, in particular with respect to a volunteer ethos. The club also aims to be inclusive and professional and to promote women's football in the local community. Benefit from our School of Football The School of Football which offers a unique one-to-one coaching experience including lessons by professional coaches, is open to all girls aged 6 to 18. Our Approach Blackburn Ladies Football Club is run by volunteers for the
