The NBA announced the availability of tickets for all remaining games during the 2017 NBA All-Star Game Weekend. Fittingly, the veterans of the league's All-Star Game, selected by a vote of fans, coaches and media, will be honored with courtside seats at Sunday's contest when they face the Rising Stars Challenge on Saturday. The league also announced a new format for the fourth annual Dunk Contest, featuring two teams of three competitors each. Teams will alternate in shooting for each of the three 3-point shots required to score a point. Each winning team from the first three rounds of the dunk contest will automatically qualify for the last round, regardless of its current standing in the All-Star Game and with the 20 best dunks in the country earning automatic spots in the record book. Once the 3-point contest is completed, the 20 best dunks from the rising stars and dunk contest will be recorded by the NBA on TNT as part of the 60-minute show, which will also include all NBA balloting results and highlights from the All-Star Game. NBA commissioner Adam Silver will present the All-Star Game MVP Award to the NBA's leading vote-getter among starters, reserves, Rising Stars contestants, winners of the Skills Challenge and those selected by the NBA on TNT, and the NBA's top performer among All-Stars will be named the winner of the NBA All-Star Game's Most Valuable Player Award. This season's Rising Stars Challenge will tip off at 9:15 p.m. ET on TNT at the Wells Fargo Center in Philadelphia. All-Star Weekend wraps up at 11:30 p.m. on Sunday.
