Thank you.The crew behind the fan-favorite, award-winning Twitch Plays Pokemon YouTube series has been putting on live streams since they launched in June 2017. It's been a great run so far. They have created a new game each week, adding their own spin on the classic Game Boy Pokemon series. We've compiled a giant collection of their entire run so far (no Twitch Plays Pokémon collections yet) right here. And while we recognize the importance of the franchise's multi-billion-dollar earnings stream, this is a much more fun way to absorb its lore. If you're wondering about the rules behind these streams, you can watch the video above to see them. Since these are livestreams, there is no "gamestart" button to press and randomise the team who will play. Instead, each team is named and submitted beforehand. But, what if the same names are submitted a zillion times? In that case, Round 9 will need to run through a sorting process. So, this time, we have you covered! As you can see, this is just a little more than half-finished (Round 8 lasted 2 weeks), so no one team is in a stronger position than any other. That being said, Team 7 has done an amazing job on the regular and is now pipping fans at the post. Each round after this, they'll have to play in an elimination series to decide who will be the next team. Keep an eye on their Twitch Plays Pokemon channel for more.A monthly over-the-counter headache medicine isn't as effective as previously thought, and Review from Game.Biz: "The Elden Ring is a fantasy action RPG that takes a modern spin on online games. In an interesting mixture of online and offline game play, you receive a set of equipment to begin with, and must explore the world and experience the many quests and story events while creating and evolving your character. The online portion of the game offers a multitude of quests to choose from and is far more stable than games that are more dependent on the success of other players. Throughout your adventures you will have the ability to connect with others (either directly through interaction or through the news feed) to help you with your quests, complete them, and side missions. The online element also allows for more open play in general. The platform has a free-to-play model, but it gives players three different ways to spend money. You can upgrade your equipment, obtain skillbooks, and buy items from the elixir vendors. Each purchases provides a unique experience, such as permanent XP boosts and temporary buffs that only last while the item is equipped. However, there is also a gold and experience exchange available, so you can exchange gold with other players for more experience or buy items with gold, if it is more convenient to the player." Review from Gamezebo: "For people who want to game online with people around the world, or without the stress that can come with lengthy waiting times, the world of the Elden Ring is ready to expand its borders. Players are given the choice to play either online or offline at the beginning of a game, and that's both a blessing and a curse, since an active community with dedicated players is easy to come across in one of these games. A couple of people on the planet at a time is a whole lot to handle, but even when you are a solo explorer, the dynamic nature of the game makes that a possibility. "The biggest advantage of Elden Ring is the deep customization system. Unlike many other RPGs, such as The Witcher 3, where you are simply assigned a class as the game goes along, in Elden Ring the players are given the opportunity to create their own class. Instead of choosing from one of four classes, you are able to design your own; Build your own class with all the power you can muster. This is an RPG with a wide range of abilities that cater to any play style or personal preference. It's not just an RPG that has a growing universe of bff6bb2d33
