For fun. Made from scratch. Made in openFrameworks. The game is made for the C++ version of openFrameworks. "); print(" Copyright (c) 2016 tri.Attack(); Trademarks - Any trademarks and registered trademarks are the property of their respective owners."); } else if(bStart == "yes"){ std::cout > bStart; if(bStart == "yes"){ bStart = "no"; std::cout > bStart; } } the characters involved are shown below. I use lindenmayer system. Which does so much more, but we will get to that... Repetitons exist to show the wording structure. These can either be the whole text, or selected sections. In cases with no "are so and so" the program automatically selects the section, since it looks wordy without it. After that the program checks the answer and the answer is shown using feiss font. Bottom line: This program is a basic text generating program. (if you dont understand what a lindenmayer system is than I suggest reading about it) You can make your own to fit any purpose and subject you wish. -Cheers! A: Game Design/Computer Programming There are no technical concerns Write the code (in C++), or if you can, Python, or JavaScript, or Perl, or some other language. Game Writing and Design You can and should do both. Interpret the rules. But keep them simple. Don't over-think it. You must be willing to play the game. There is a game. It is a text adventure game. You must know how to follow a story through a "novel". You have two choices: Don't play the game, or read it. There is no rule

Red Team(Attacker): Play the role of a computer hacker. As a hacker, you are in control of the network as well as your teammates. You must steal network control by taking the network out of service, and keeping it out of service. You will explore the network and subvert network control by "hacking" things, attempting to show your teammates how to do things you understand best. By hacking, you may deny access to critical components, remove security controls, and introduce any number of problems that will result in the "Blue Team" (or defender) losing control of the network. You can hack with physical attacks, using, for example, powerful programmable logic controllers or in-game keyboard commands. You can hack with software, using less powerful methods such as search strings, social engineering, and guessing pass codes. You can hack with any legal method, but common hacks use software methods or social engineering. Be creative! You can disable, damage, or destroy and/or cause large-scale changes in any or all of the following computer systems: HMI systems (including network equipment), HMI network devices, computer systems, computer networks, wireless and wired networks, and databases. Your actions may have direct, local, or remote consequences. Blue Team (Defender): Use the role of a network defender. You are in control of the network, and can stop your teammates from hacking and denying access to the network. You must create, maintain, and administer network security controls, most commonly hardware, software, or firmware. You must ensure that no one can break out of the network or subvert network control. You may have rules, policies, or procedures to prevent people from attempting unauthorized activities, and you may enforce those rules. However, you cannot prevent all people from attempting to hack the network. You may deny access to critical components, detect, prevent, remove, or correct hacks, and you may block, remove, or correct attempts to hack the network with any legal method you choose. You may have to protect against hacks, destruction, destruction and removal, and you may protect against any type of attack that causes the network or any network-connected resources to become out of service, including massive network attacks, single attacks, and denial of service attacks. You may deny access to any of the network systems, network devices, networks, or databases that are part of the network. Control: You control access to the network as well as your teammates access to the network. You decide when to control

, Park Jeong-Geum A day without you in my life, would be a day without you in the whole world, the holiday is joyful and sad at the same time. You are the staff and the heart of me, I've been homesick because of you, I probably will be until the day I die. (LOVE YOU!!!!) Cut Gee, I'm so forgetfull, mushy, it really hurts when you are my girl and I'm a boy. I'm wondering what kind of girl I am. -like a minute ago, I was pretty sure that I'm a boy, but now there is doubt. I'm forgetting what kind of girl I really am. (I) To have a right to live is to have a feeling of self awareness. It's scary. I've often heard that I am a halfcaste...but I'm starting to feel like a fullcaste. I don't know that "me" has existed in this planet. So when I think of self-awareness, I think about the fact that this emotion of confusion, of being trapped and speechless, may be the feeling of an individual's existence in history. (exchange) Cut "I love you" said a mysterious man to me some days ago. My heart's become pale red like a small pearls... (Could it be? What could this be?) Cut Once I had a father who loved me, after he finally admitted the love, I asked him, "Why did you love me?" he answered, "I'm glad you don't know, you are much better than your mother," (Must be a joke?) I really don't know the best way to say thank you. I fear that I'm only seeing what I was meant to see. I'll probably mess things up when I get my wisdom. Cut I am only your dream... I will take your heart from your chest, and I'll sign only the name "you". I'll stay around for a few days, like a king did a disgraced prince, until my sister comes home. (Chile,

A Klondike Explorer is required to complete the game. Anyone can play as the Klondike Explorer! At the start of the game, a newly discovered tribe lives in the icy Klondike region and is unprepared for the coming winter. The adventurer must assist the tribe by providing much needed supplies to avoid an early death. What to do once you get there? Explore the area to find random encounters. Enter the nearby village, the goblins may provide information about where the "Crystal Palace" is Ask at the goblins for more information about the "Crystal Palace" Explore the area and see what resources you can find. Go to the nearby tribe and trade resources, visit a nearby village Gameplay You were chosen to deliver resources to a base within five days. However, you most likely will not be able to make it far enough with the few supplies you currently have with you. Through trading at villages to finding random events, you will need to interact with the citizens of the the Klondike region to both stay alive and locate the research base. Any village elder will be able to give you information about where in the Klondike you may find the research base. The local trader will be more than willing to take some of the gold and pelts off your hands in exchange for some food or shelter. Throughout the world are random encounters, where the player may find resources to stay alive, find journal entries detailing the lore of the game, or be set upon by bandits.
