Big Ten Power Rankings: Week 5 This is the Big Ten Power Rankings for the week of October 2, 2013. Last week the ranking was a little off, but not by much. This week it should be even more off because the rankings are based on results from last week. 1. Ohio State (7-0) Last week: #1 This week: #1 The Buckeyes beat Illinois and will play Michigan this weekend for the right to play Michigan State in the Big Ten title game. Ohio State is in the driver's seat to the Big Ten championship and probably the national championship. 2. Michigan (6-1) Last week: #2 This week: #1 Michigan only lost to the visiting Hawkeyes last week, and did so by three points. That's five straight wins for Michigan, and the Big Ten champs have scored 40 points in every game except for that loss. Michigan also remains undefeated in Big Ten play. 3. Wisconsin (7-0) Last week: #3 This week: #1 Wisconsin beat Maryland last week, and returned home to open Big Ten play against a Gophers squad that is no match for them. The Badgers defense has shutdown the second best passing attack in the country, and they will have a chance to continue the run next weekend. Wisconsin is a serious threat to go undefeated in the Big Ten. 4. Iowa (5-2) Last week: #4 This week: #3 Iowa shocked many and beat Nebraska last week to move to 5-2 in the conference. They play a Nebraska squad that will be coming off a bye week this week. 5. Michigan State (6-1) Last week: #5 This week: #4 Michigan State also fell to a Nebraska team last week, and the Spartans have struggled on offense all season. The Spartans have plenty of time to figure it out, but they have lost to Syracuse, Harvard, and North Carolina. They play Northwestern this week. 6. Nebraska (6-1) Last week: #3 This week: #6 Nebraska lost a close game e79caf774b
