MUSIC LICENSE: Sample Music the first time in human history, a species is expected to reach extinction on Earth in less than 50 years, according to a University of Washington study. The new projected extinction date is based on the continued destruction of habitats and increased habitat fragmentation in Africa and Southeast Asia, where humans are pressing species into more isolated and less resilient ecosystems. "Humans are a significant factor in the process of species extinction on Earth," said the study's lead author, Rick Potts, an ecologist and senior fellow at the UW's School of Marine and Environmental Studies. "Humans' impacts threaten more species per unit area than any other factor in the last 50 years." A new study by Rick Potts, a University of Washington senior fellow at the School of Marine and Environmental Studies, projects a new date for the species extinction crisis based on continued destruction of natural habitats and increased habitat fragmentation in Africa and Southeast Asia. Credit: UW More than a quarter of all identified species are vulnerable, Potts said. Though the date of the extinction crisis, or "sixth mass extinction," is uncertain, it is generally believed to begin in the year 2050. But the new study points to a far greater threat than climate change, habitat loss and overexploitation: the loss of the "ecosystem services" that nature provides, from flood control to climate regulation and the production of food, fresh water and air, Potts said. "It's as

The latest version of the popular fantasy action RPG is here. The Last Aerith DLC pack will be, not the last, but still the latest and greatest version of the game.

This is a hard to find title that needs no introduction. The game's easy to learn fantasy formula meshes well with exceptionally rewarding gameplay. While the sidequesting might be a bit annoying, the vast world and the game mechanics are easy to comprehend.

Thanks to Rixoo Entertainment

The Last Aerith DLC are also welcome because it features

- A new quest and no new skills or item.
- A new dungeon and new enemies.
- New quests for completionists and those who just want to earn medal points.
- New items: a new pair of gloves, boots, new amulets, a sword, a bow, four shield and a scroll. Players will also be able to use higher-stamina version of an existing item.
- You can combine weapon with energy and armor with power for best effect.
- You can end up with one, two, even three "linked" items to use.
- New hidden seals for some items.
