The AZD2066/PTR128 trial (NCT00253744) compared AZD2066/PTR128 (AZD) plus trastuzumab/docetaxel (TD) versus trastuzumab/docetaxel (TD) in patients with advanced HER2-positive breast cancer. This is the first phase III trial comparing AZD with TD as the standard of care in patients with advanced HER2-positive breast cancer. In this preplanned analysis, we examined progression-free survival (PFS), overall survival (OS), and overall response rate (ORR) in the AZD and TD cohorts. Eligible patients had HER2-positive metastatic breast cancer and had received no previous chemotherapy for advanced disease. Patients randomized to AZD were assigned to receive AZD (500 mg/m<sup>2</sup>) followed by 750 mg/m<sup>2</sup>, every 21 days) plus trastuzumab (8 mg/kg loading dose, followed by 6 mg/kg intravenous infusion, every 21 days). Patients randomized to TD received trastuzumab (8 mg/kg loading dose, followed by 6 mg/kg intravenous infusion, every 21 days) and docetaxel (75 mg/m<sup>2</sup> intravenous infusion, every 21 days). Patient eligibility criteria, time to inclusion and randomization, and baseline characteristics were as in the study. The primary endpoint was PFS. Secondary endpoints included ORR, OS, and treatment-related adverse events. Study enrollment began in July 2007 and completed in September 2009. One-hundred fifty-three patients were included in the AZD and TD cohorts, respectively. Median follow-up was 36 months. Median age was 50 years. Median PFS was significantly longer with AZD versus TD (6.2 versus 3.5 months, HR 0.57, 95% confidence interval [CI]: 0.42-0.80, P=0.0009). Median OS was 48.8 versus 44.8
