Q: Change UI for scipy.stats.binned_stat_2d I am using the bins_uniform method of the scipy.stats.binned_stat_2d class to calculate the mean, variance and the standard deviation of a plot, which is shown in the example below: import matplotlib.pyplot as plt import numpy as np from scipy.stats import binned_stat_2d import pandas as pd # Scale the data x, y using the MinMaxScaler x = np.arange(50) y = np.array([11, 20, 2, 10, 22, 13, 0, 12, 24, 26, 12, 14, 10, 9, 8, 15, 9, 9, 8, 1, 2, 4, 5, 8]) scaled_x, scaled_y = pd.DataFrame({"x": x, "y": y}).iloc[:9], pd.DataFrame({"x": x, "y": y}).iloc[9:] min_x = min(scaled_x["x"]) max_x = max(scaled_x["x"]) min_y = min(scaled_y["y"]) max_y = max(scaled_y["y"]) # Calculate the bins and mean, variance and standard deviation for the data bins = np.arange(0, 51, 5) hist, bins = np.histogram(scaled_x["x"], bins, bins, density=True) mean, variance = binned_stat_2d(hist) std = np.std(scaled_y["y"]) # Remove bins for overlapping areas bins

Compare the best audio programs to find the best music editors for Windows and Mac. Why this guy's story is a bitter lesson to hackers - chromaton ===== justaman I disagree, and I feel it's a misleading title, because it intimates that he went and paid a ransom. There is nothing that could be more absurd than to pay a ransom, especially when the actual end result is less chance that you will be attacked again. Also, I don't feel that any lesson has been learned, unless somebody is going to tell the FBI about this, but I would think they would already have a handle on things. My feelings are, that people like this make public security harder. I would be concerned about telling all my private information to the FBI, especially given the fact that the FBI has been known to misappropriate that data in the past. I would hope a lesson has been learned, like that your life should not be made miserable because of the good intentions of some people. ~~~ bgray He says it's not only him. "I may well have scared off a few more." The point of the story was to be honest about being helpless against viruses. If you tell the truth about your lack of technical expertise and don't pretend that you could evade a virus when you really aren't in a position to do so, you give people a pretty darn good reason not to listen to you when you try to advise them. It also helps prevent you from getting entrenched in the "information bubble" of overestimating your own abilities. ----- jqm Well... the thing is if you don't realize you are being hacked and you decide to pay a ransom and then claim later that you believed the threat...well... it doesn't look so good. "I may well have scared off a few more." I think he is basically saying that he doesn't know... so it might be impossible to really tell. Maybe this guy is guilty of a crime? ----- webXL "I may well have scared off a few more" and lost "some respect" among his peers. I think those lessons were learned. ----- 0x 6d1f23a050
