The role is the world's most lucrative superhero gig and Garfield has now agreed to the time-tested S.H.I.E.L.D. motto: If you aren't willing to die for your art, don't even bother trying to live for it.

He'll be joined by the less commercially successful but equally charismatic cast member, Emma Stone, who'll play girlfriend and one-time operator, Mary Jane. The spin-off from the Marvel Comics series will film in New York City and is expected to be released in two parts starting in 2012. The plot will reportedly be set in the present day, with the villain Vulture attempting to take over the city by destroying the Brooklyn Bridge. This should make for an exciting transition, but hopefully one that doesn't involve Spidey getting shot by the bad guys or having to face off against the Jersey Devil.Repeated immunization with the group A streptococcal M-like protein induces strain-specific and dose-dependent antibody and cellular responses. Streptococcal M-like protein (Mlp) is a conserved streptococcal protein that was originally identified as the main antigenic component of the M-protein type M5 of group A Streptococcus (GAS). However, the M-like protein of type M5 is not homologous to the M-like protein of type M1 GAS, the only M-like protein characterized so far. In the present study we analyzed in mice the protective efficacy of repeated immunizations with the M-like proteins of GAS type M1, M5, and M28 that contain two or three tandem M-like protein domains.
